Instructions for "THE 4 FOOD GROUPS FOR BETTER MEALS GAME"

"The 4 Food Groups for Better Meals Game" is played similar to the game of Bingo, and is suitable for any age group. Players learn the four food groups as they play.

- I. The contents of the game include:
 - A. instruction sheet
 - B. sample filled-in game card
 - C. 25 game cards for players
 - D. sheet of call numbers
 - E. check sheet for the number caller
 - F. Daily Food Guide poster (FNS-13)
 - G. listing of some foods according to food groups
- II. Additional materials required for playing include:
 - A. pencil for each player
 - B. (optional) small prizes for winners. For example, vegetable or flower seeds, measuring spoons or cups, nutritious canned foods, a package of peanuts, etc. (For groups over 25, expect duplicate winners.)
- III. Before the game starts:
 - A. cut the numbers apart and put in a box. Mix them well.
 - B. Display the Daily Food Guide poster in sight of all players.
 - C. Pass out game cards.
- IV. Prepare the players:
 - A. Discuss the Daily Food Guide and foods that belong in each group. Also discuss foods that fall in the fifth "Other Foods" group. Let players practice naming foods until they seem to know what food belongs in what group. Players should list foods in the appropriate spaces at the bottom of the game card.
 - B. Now explain the game. When a food group and number is called, that matches the food group and number on the card, the player writes in the space the name of a food which belongs in that group.
For example, when the food group and number "Milk 9" is called, the player might write "cottage cheese" in the space. The player must write a different food in each space, as the food group and number is called.
 - C. To win, the player must fill a row across, up-and-down, or on-the-diagonal. The winner calls out "Meals."
 - D. Cards can be used several times if players cross out or erase old entries.
- V. To play the game:
 - A. The caller draws numbers from the box one at a time, and calls them out to players; for example, "Milk 9", Bread-Cereal 64."
 - B. The caller places each called number in the matching space on the check sheet, and allows time for players to jot down the food name.
 - C. When a player calls out "Meals," stop the game.
 - D. The winning player must then call out the food group and number, and foods he wrote in each space. The caller should check to make sure that 1) each number used was actually called, 2) foods are in the right food groups, and 3) there is no duplication of food names on the winner's card. The game may continue for winners 2, 3, 4, etc., or award the prize to the first winner.

VI. Variations:

After the group has learned the four food groups, try some variation. Make foods written under the Meat Group represent only meat alternates (dry beans, peas; eggs; peanut butter; nuts; etc.); make foods written under the Vegetable-Fruit Group represent only vitamin A (or vitamin C) vegetables and/or fruits.

VII. Additional sets of "The 4 Food Groups for Better Meals Game" can be obtained from the Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Nada Poole, Elizabeth E. Curtis, and Georgine Nolte had major responsibility for developing this game.
